Fidelity Bldg. Association To Mature Three Series

At the annual meeting of the Fidelity Building Association last night the directors voted to mature three single and one double series of stock in 1939. This action was taken by the directors it was announced, after the approval of the annual report which showed that the Association has rapidly recovered from the depression.

The statement showed the payment of these series will amount to $17,200 which will be paid to the stockholders in cash on the day of maturity.

The secretary reported that the reserve or contingent fund, now required by the state law to be at least five percent and not more than 10 percent of the assets, is now $12,500. This amount being within $3,500 of the 10 percent permitted by law.

Due to the condition of the Association, it is said, the directors feel that maturity periods will now rapidly get back to the period of 140 months, which for the past few years, has been increased by reason of the building up of the reserve fund and the expenses on real estate during the depression period.

It was found that applications for good loans are increasing each year and a review of the loans made in recent years disclosed that there are few delinquents.

The Association has much of its real estate under contract of sale and it is estimated that these sales will be consummated during the next three years and will give the Association a profit of at least $9,000. The total book value of real estate owned is given as $22,500. The book value of 14 properties under sale agreement is $13,600. The sale price of these 14 properties was $23,300. Thus a profit of $9,700 will be made when these agreements are consummated. The Association owns eight other properties, having a book value of $8,900. It is believed that these properties will be sold at about $14,000, it was stated. If this is done an additional profit of $5,100 will be made.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Proposed liquor law legislation that will come up at the next session of the Pennsylvania Legislature was discussed at a meeting of the Bucks County Federation of Fraternal and Social Clubs held at the Mutual Aid Society's club headquarters in Bristol.

The meeting was presided over by Frank L. Worthington, of Doylestown, president of the association.

Representative Thomas B. Stockham, of Morrisville, was a guest of the meeting. He told the club managers and officers what his stand was on organizations such as the Bucks county federation, by paying them a very fine compliment. He said he hoped that all organizations interested in the liquor industry would "get together so that suitable legislation pertaining to that industry can be passed."

Representative Stockham told the members that the liquor question is the biggest social problem legislators have to meet today and that unless it is properly handled, a small minority can ruin a lot of time and effort put forth by the groups who want the liquor laws carried out to the letter.

Mr. Stockham welcomed the various clubs of Bucks county to call upon the Bucks county members of the House and Senate at any time.

The next meeting of the association will be held at the Doylestown Inn Sunday afternoon, February 19, at 4 o'clock, to be followed by a dinner, at which time the ladies will be guests.

Sixteen new homes, valued at about $75,000, were erected in Morrisville Borough during 1938, and from present indications this building boom will continue. Developers in the Highland Park section estimate that at least 50 new homes will be built during 1939.

While most of the homes were erected on the Highland Park tract, others were built in various sections of the borough. R. B. Emmons is completing a house on Harper avenue; Markus Ketchum built a home on West Maple avenue; Rose Delliello on Philadelphia avenue; George Geary on Harper avenue; Caleb Foster erected several homes on Clymer avenue; A. E. Gould on North Pennsylvania avenue; Ralph Ford at Lafayette and Harper avenues; John Cooper at Jefferson and West Hendrickson avenues; Italian American Social Club on Harrison avenue. The others were erected by the C. and G. Construction Company and the Ross Realty Corporation.

With 60 Guardsmen and friends in attendance, an organization dinner of the officers and members of Company D, 11th Infantry, National Guard of Pennsylvania, was held in the Armory at Doylestown.

Designed to give the Guardsmen a night off, when they could have a little fun because they "soldier" the entire year, the event was particularly successful. Credit must go to Lieutenant Oscar E. Gerney, of Somerton, and

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Chiericoni, 272 McKinley street, entertained friends at their home on Friday evening. A social time was followed by a repast.

Those attending: Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerlyn, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Gillies, Jr., George Kerlyn.

On Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. Chiericoni entertained at a demonstration dinner. Guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. Huckle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerlyn, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Gillies, Jr.

DOYLESTOWN'S FIRE LOSS AMOUNTS TO ONLY $500

DOYLESTOWN, Jan. 11.—Doylestown's fire loss during 1938 amounted to about $500, Fire Chief Stover announced in his annual report.

During the year Doylestown Fire Company was called out to 45 fires which included fighting fires in six barns, three houses, two pump-houses, the partial destruction of a motor truck, a tree and an electric motor.

The loss in Doylestown was the destruction of the Samuel Good barn, in the west end of the borough, which amounted to about $500.

Out-of-town fires included the fighting of fires in three automobiles, a lumber pile, garage, 14 grass fires, four woods fires, five chimneys, a skating rink, kerosene stove and other minor blazes.

Chief Stover reported only one fire, the partial destruction of a pump-house, for December 1938.

After making a survey it was learned that the Doylestown Fire Company has 45 active firemen.

A suggestion was made by Harold Hellyer that any active fireman, who has served for a period of 25 years, should be given an honorary membership. Provision for this suggestion will be made in the by-laws.

At the annual meeting held recently by the Peace W. Carlisle Hobensack was re-elected president for his twelfth successive term. Other officers include the following: First vice-president, Harold Hellyer; second vice-president, Dr. Ralph C. Farquhar, Jr.; recording secretary, Ralph W. Wasser; assistant secretary, C. Propose Hydro-Electric Plant

Washington, Jan. 11.—A Congressional movement to increase Federal hydro-electric resources in the nation, encouraged by high ranking War Department officials, as vital to national defense, was taking shape today.

In several instances members of Congress, claiming to act on advice of the War Department, have instituted efforts for special investigation of hydro-electric possibilities of some of the biggest rivers of the country.

One of the projects being urged for development is the Delaware River. Hydro-electric plants on this river would serve one of the greatest manufacturing areas in the country, embracing parts of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and New York.

As Secretary of the Commonwealth, at $10,000 a year, Miss O'Hara can wield great power.

Playing A Game

Washington, Jan. 10. NO SECRET is being made in and about the White House that the President is playing a very clever game with Congress. At least he and his more intimate friends think it is clever. And the major Administration strategists chuckle in anticipation of the next day in which they expect it to work out.

PERHAPS they are right. The plan is based upon belief in the basic inability of Congress to function efficiently if left to itself, for which idea, it must be admitted there is some foundation. The Presidential strategy is exceedingly simple. Mr. Roosevelt has been told in the press and by various Democratic leaders with whom he conferred prior to the opening of the session that the recent election showed a desire of the people to have Congress throw off executive domination and regain its functions as an independent body.

IN other words, he proposes to

SELECT COMMITTEE FOR SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

Three Women and One Man Named for Bristol District

OTHERS IN THE COUNTY

Prominent Bucks County residents have volunteered their services for The Salvation Army 1939 Greater Philadelphia maintenance Fund campaign, which opens its drive for $200,000 at a luncheon tomorrow at the Bellevue-Stratford, Philadelphia.

Chairman of the Bucks County Division is Wallace G. Murfit, of Newtown, manager of the district offices of the Phila. Gas Works, assisting him as vice-chairmen are Mrs. Horace W. Watson and J. Carroll Molloy, also of Newtown, and F. Hampton Morris, of State Road, Bristol.

Chairman Murfit, in announcing the personnel of his committee, declared he expected his group to surpass all previous Bucks County records in raising funds for the humanitarian work of the Army in the Greater Philadelphia area.

Mr. Murfit was vice-chairman of The Salvation Army campaign in 1936, and has been active in Army work in Bucks County for a number of years.

The committee will join nearly a thousand other workers from Philadelphia, Montgomery, Delaware and Chester counties at the opening luncheon, at which Edwin C. Hill, noted author and radio commentator, will be the principal speaker.

Mr. Hill, who conducts the radio column, "The Human Side of the News," will talk on the work of The Salvation Army and urge that all citizens of the Philadelphia area give it their wholehearted support.

Joseph K. T. Van Pelt, of Radnor, general campaign chairman, in announcing Mr. Hill as the chief speaker, made an appeal for unselfish support of The Salvation Army.

"The Salvation Army," he said, "has for 59 years been on the job in the Philadelphia area, bringing spiritual and physical aid to the needy and unfortunate."

Through its various departments, the Army has unquestioningly gone to the aid of families, men, women and children. In many cases, the Army has supplied emergency aid—for which it is always mobilized—while making arrangements for permanent relief.

"When the people of the Philadelphia area realize that The Salvation Army carries on this great work without aid from any municipal, State or Federal agency, I am confident that the appeal for funds to maintain its humanitarian activities will be overwhelmingly answered by the general public."

Bucks county workers are announced by Mr. Murfit as follows: Bristol: Mrs. Bruce S. Gillard, Mrs. Frank Lehman, Mrs. Dorothy E. Fehentburg, and J. C. Schmidt, Jr.

Doylestown: Mrs. Harry W. Briggs, Mrs. John H. Elfin, Mrs. J. Harry Hoffman, Mrs. Benjamin Haskey, Jr., and Daniel Atkinson.

Churchville: Mrs. Henry Strathmann, Mrs. J. E. Chamberlin and Mrs. Sophie Uthoff.

Langhorne: Mrs. C. R. Holland, Mrs. Arthur F. Hagar, Mrs. Paul B. Bennett, Mrs. Beatrice Sylvester and Miss Betty Griffin.

Southampton: Mrs. Stuart Beatty, Mrs. Adelaide H. Cotter, Mrs. Harry Tomlinson, Morris Tomlinson and C. Wilson Roberts.

Sellersville: Mrs. Charles Kaufman, Mrs. Luther Barndt and Miss Grace Clemmer.

Newtown: Mrs. Alfred Errico, Mrs. Reuben Kester, Mrs. Wallace G. Murfit, Miss Mary E. Murfit, and Miss Elaine Stradling.

Cornwells: Mrs. Roscoe Perkins and Mrs. H. H. Dettemer.

Chalfont: Mrs. Walter W. Hefterich, Ivyland: William H. Molloy, New Hope: Miss Maud Funk, Buckingham: Mrs. John G. Fetterolf, Richboro: Mrs. Marion Davis, Treviso: Jay V. Hare, Eureka: Mrs. Clyde R. Hutchcroft, Warrington: Mrs. J. Fretz Rutherford, Hulmeville: Jesse C. Everitt.

BENSALEM TO SEND GROUP TO PARADE AT INAUGURATION

Over 200 Men and Women Are Expected To Join Bucks County Group

TO WEAR FARMER GARB

Lewis Swartz Will Ride in An Automobile of 1901 Vintage

Bensalem Township Republicans have a little surprise in store for the inaugural on Tuesday.

For when Judge Arthur H. James is sworn in as the chief executive of the commonwealth, Bensalem's delegation, of close to 200 men and women, all in costume, will parade at Harrisburg for his excellency, the new governor of Pennsylvania.

And as far as we know it will be the finest delegation of Bensalem Republicans at Harrisburg in many years to welcome a new governor.

It will be, also, Bucks County's largest delegation and parade.

Plans for the affair, which is being sponsored by the Bensalem Republican Club, have just about been completed, under the guidance of Lewis Swartz, Treviso, prominent Bucks Countyman, and highly esteemed G. P. leader of Bensalem Township.

In outlining some of the details of his organization's celebration and welcome Mr. Swartz said, "We've been working on this thing for some time. We're going to put on a show of welcome for the next governor that will make everybody in Harrisburg sit up and take notice next Tuesday. And since this Bensalem parade will be the only Bucks County delegation in the line of march, we want it to be outstanding."

The group, which will parade over the streets and thoroughfares of Harrisburg Tuesday, January 17th, following Judge James' induction into office, will be led by a banner carrier with the inscription, "Bensalem Township, Bucks County."

Next in line will be the guard of honor—the American flag with two Grand Army veterans carrying muskets.

The guard of honor will be followed by a one-man band, and then will come a large model of an elephant riding on a box seat wagon. John Warner, Treviso, will drive the mule that will draw the wagon carrying the victorious elephant.

Lewis Swartz, the man who turned in one of the most significant Republican majorities in Bensalem that has ever been turned in for any candidate, will be the next in line of parade in his 1901 Franklin automobile. This car bears the honor and title of "The oldest Republican car in Bucks County" and "the Republican automobile which has never been out of line since it came into Bucks County." Owen Vansant, Treviso, will be the chauffeur.

And then—"Bensalem's farmers" and enthusiastic Republicans, more than 150 strong, all in costume! The women will wear gingham dresses and sunbonnets. The men will be attired in striking old-fashioned dusters and straw hats. Bensalem and Mr. Swartz are being highly commended on organizing such a unit as this to parade in Harrisburg.

The delegation, which already includes Republicans from Bristol Borough, Bristol Township, Lower Southampton, Doylestown, and many other sections of Bucks County, will leave Treviso next Tuesday morning at 7.56 a. m. in special chartered railroad cars of the Reading Company.

Mrs. Harry B. Carter Claimed By Death Here

Mrs. Mary J. Carter, wife of Harry B. Carter, died this morning at her home, 806 Mansion street, after a lingering illness.

The late Bristol resident is survived by her husband; one son, Charles, Cornwells Heights; a sister, Mrs. Etta Maberry, and a brother, George Woldard.

Mrs. Carter had made Bristol her home all her life. She was a member of Shepherds Delight Lodge, No. 1, Shepherds of Bethlehem; and Camp No. 89, P. O. of A. She was a past commander of the Shepherds lodge, and past-president of the P. O. of A. She was a member of Bristol M. E. Church for many years, and had a wide circle of friends.

The Rev. J. Carpenter Zook, pastor of Bristol Methodist Church, will officiate at the service on Saturday at one p. m., from the funeral home of the H. S. Rue Estate, 314 Cedar street. Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery. Friends may call Friday evening.

ADMITTED TO BAR

James W. Townsend, Langhorne, was admitted to the practice of law before the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on Monday. He plans to practice in Bucks county and in the near future will open an office in the Townsend Building, Langhorne, adjoining offices of A. P. Townsend & Son Co.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 11, 1939

CLARIFICATION IS NEEDED

News dispatches begin to describe in some detail the uses intended for the 10,000 additional warplanes proposed by the President. On the other hand, according to report, neither the Army chief of staff, the Secretary of War nor the appropriate Naval officials yet have been consulted about the whole affair.

This is an odd and unprecedented state of affairs, which is rendered no more reassuring by the fact that the defense theories described are eminently plausible to the lay mind. It is said, for example, that the vast air fleet is made necessary by our possession of two coasts and only one Navy. A Navy for each coast being out of the question, some way must be found of holding back a foe from the Panama Canal while the battle fleet is getting from one ocean to the other. The answer is an invincible air fleet, to be based at or near the Canal.

The plausibility of this theory is such as to suggest origin in the mind of a civilian amateur with an amateur's delight in novelty. It is so very plausible, indeed, that one hardly questions it until he remembers that Army authorities up to now have been asking for only 3,000 planes, which they have held adequate for defense, including the defense of Panama. One wonders if these authorities had overlooked heretofore the trifling detail that both of two coasts require defense.

Indications are that a lot of clarifying will remain for Congress to do. Taxpayers will want to know what the Army and Navy experts really think about it, before the money starts rolling out.

WEEDS HAVE THEIR VALUE

Here is good news for the New Year: The dust bowl, which in recent years got so much publicity, is being subdued. There have been rains to lay the dust, but alone these would not have cured the evil. Between showers the dust bowl would have continued dusty.

The job has been done by a fellow not commonly considered a friend of the farmer, the common weed. R. I. Throckmorton, head of the agronomy department of the Kansas State College, has been conducting a survey and reports that with reasonable precautions on the part of western farmers, the "big duststers" are unlikely to recur. He says the heavy weed growth, and other factors, have kept the soil from blowing away.

Nature is whimsical but there is a certain logic back of her program. Thoughtless humans, bent on adapting the universe to their own needs have said unpleasant things about weeds. But science is discovering that even the humble weed has its part in the general scheme.

Is there place here for a little preachment? How about the over-energetic and not well-directed youngsters who sometimes are called "weeds" by their staid, unimaginative, practical elders? Is it not possible that a little patience and understanding may bring out the usefulness of these too-exuberant specimens?

In demanding half the Suez Canal, it is supposed the Duce's preference would be that of a well known driving type on our highways, viz., the middle half.

The Great Game of Politics

put the responsibility for action on Congress. Vice-President Garner and Senator Harrison do not agree with some of the New Deal policies which have been translated into laws. Very well, let them evolve either amendments or substitutions and see where they get—for example, in the farm problem, on the revamping of WPA, on changing the Wagner Labor Act,

AT any rate, that is the argument. Of course, there is another side to it. For one thing, it will be exceedingly difficult for Mr. Roosevelt to hold his studied aloofness. Such an attitude not only is foreign to his nature but unsuited to his purposes. For example, he hardly would sit supinely by and watch Congress adopt Senator Byrd's reorganization plan, under which many of his pet, wholly useless and very expensive New Deal gadgets, such as the National Emergency Council, would be abolished. And the Byrd plan is exactly what Congress would adopt if left to itself, it being at heart for a reorganization scheme that will save money rather than for one that does not even pretend to save.

THEN, too, it may develop that, instead of floundering, Congress, a majority of which is unquestionably conservative at heart, will not only function but, in paring down appropriations, amending the Wagner Act and remodeling relief, find itself so strongly supported by public sentiment that the expected demand for Mr. Roosevelt to reassert his leadership will not materialize at all. It will be interesting to watch developments. Certainly it is true that Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward Congress today is much less that of the master than it has been before. The principle

"You think that, do you?" he meditated.

"I do indeed," she said firmly. "You have been away from Europe for so long that it must be hard for you to realize, but to me and many others who think about our countries at all, it does seem as though a sort of chaotic paralysis were creeping over the world. If it is not lethargy, it is disaster."

"You are in a serious frame of mind," remarked Matresser to Elisabeth.

"I am a serious person," she told him. "I have every predisposition towards frivolity. I want to play all the time. I would love to find myself in a world in which there was no work to be done and only music to trouble one's senses, but it is not possible. These are the days to quote our enemy Hellstern—when a man's hand must rest upon the sword."

"And a woman's?"

Her manner stiffened a little.

"That was only allegorical, of course. I think that all humanity, all the nations—men, women and children—should be training themselves to do something in life to restore the lost balances."

"That sounds very depressing," he admitted, "especially coming from the daughter of one of the greatest nations in the civilized world."

"Once perhaps the gayest," she insisted. "No, now. Even you, if you were to spend a few months traveling closer at home... might see things a little differently. It is the cities and crowded places where human beings still live that are worth rediscovering. . . . And now," she concluded, with a laugh, "I have been almost rude to my host. I have been exceedingly impertinent. Let us talk of something else."

"I am depressed," he said. "You are a very severe critic, Mademoiselle Stamier. You do not seem to approve of me at all."

She made no reply. They had reached the end of the lane skirting the wood and Matresser leaned over the gate looking thoughtfully across the field to where the turrets and far-reaching front of the Great House were visible. She looked up at him questioning.

"Admiring your property?" she inquired with gentle sarcasm. "It is a very magnificent mansion."

"I was engaged in a careful attempt at reconstruction," he acknowledged. "I was asking myself, in short, why any human being who was already half unconscious should have stumbled down this lane, climbed over this five-barred gate only to collapse amongst those unpleasant looking turnips."

"Is this the spot where Fergus was found?"

"Within a half dozen yards of this gate. Probably in that little patch of roots which seems to have been rather disturbed. It was from here that they took him to Dr. Andrews."

"Why did you bring me here?"

"I will atone by taking you away again," he answered with a smile. "It does not really lead anywhere."

"They retraced their steps and leaving the lane at its junction with the main road, turned towards the village. Down in the harbor the DAPHNE was rolling in a strong swell coming in against the tide. A threat of rain was in the skies. The place was almost deserted. As they reached the pier, however, a mighty shape slowly drew itself up from the hatch of the DAPHNE. With legs wide apart and keeping perfect balance, notwithstanding the roll of the boat, van Westheene raised a pair of head glasses to his eyes and stood gazing landwards.

on the curtailing of expenses, on departmental reorganization.

THAT'S the idea. If Congress objects to being called a rubber stamp this is its chance. It will have full recommendations from the President, but he will make no effort to force them through in exactly the way he wants them. There will be no more "must" bills and the official White House "contact men" will keep hands off. The conviction of the "inner circle," responsible for these tactics, is that left to itself in this way Congress will give so pitiful an exhibition of incompetency that in the end there will come from the people and from Congress itself a demand that the President take hold and supply the necessary leadership.

IN other words, the Administration bet is that the net result of a period of "freedom from executive interference" will make it plain that a Congress, split, as this one is, among New Dealers, Conservative Democrats and Republicans, cannot really function on its own; that before summer it will have things in such a general mess that the country will be sick and disgusted; that it will have been demonstrated that the Republicans have no really alternative program; that the New Deal opposition lacks unity and thought. The more the legislative body flounders the stronger the reaction toward the President. By summer the situation will be such that the Congress will be ready to eat out of his hand.

AT any rate, that is the argument. Of course, there is another side to it. For one thing, it will be exceedingly difficult for Mr. Roosevelt to hold his studied aloofness. Such an attitude not only is foreign to his nature but unsuited to his purposes. For example, he hardly would sit supinely by and watch Congress adopt Senator Byrd's reorganization plan, under which many of his pet, wholly useless and very expensive New Deal gadgets, such as the National Emergency Council, would be abolished. And the Byrd plan is exactly what Congress would adopt if left to itself, it being at heart for a reorganization scheme that will save money rather than for one that does not even pretend to save.

THEN, too, it may develop that, instead of floundering, Congress, a majority of which is unquestionably conservative at heart, will not only function but, in paring down appropriations, amending the Wagner Act and remodeling relief, find itself so strongly supported by public sentiment that the expected demand for Mr. Roosevelt to reassert his leadership will not materialize at all. It will be interesting to watch developments. Certainly it is true that Mr. Roosevelt's attitude toward Congress today is much less that of the master than it has been before. The principle by thirty members of Parliament at a private meeting in the House of Commons, where a resolution was passed which declared:

"There can be no transference of territories at present held under the British flag . . . we are further convinced from all the evidence since adduced that while the German claim for transfer would gravely imperil the strategic safety and impair the homogeneity of the British Empire, more especially in Africa such change would provide no substantial relief to Germany in the matter of raw materials or settlement for her people."

Although refusing to turn over territories, England has left the matter open for international discussion. The British government has officially declared that it would "welcome the consideration of any proposals which might meet any real difficulties encountered by Germany or other states in securing adequate access to supplies of raw materials or food-stuffs."

Summed up—British policy revolves about the belief that the colonies are "not ours to give."

It is the English belief that the colonies were conquered by the united effort of the whole Empire and the dominions, and Britain holds them as an insurance against renewal of the dangers and losses which their one-time possession by Germany caused.

Britain argues that they have given guarantees to the natives and to settlers, and that they are in a position of trustee and are bound to fulfill their trust.

England is seeking support from France, her natural ally, in defense of the empire position. France, also a holder of World War reparation colonial mandates, is expected, according to international political observers, to throw her lot in with the British lion.

Japan and Italy are the nations regarded as Germany's possible partners in a new international alliance antagonistic to the powers retaining possession of her former territories overseas. Already, the German press has backed up Italy in her thrust against French Tunisia. Japan is considered a likely partner because of her aims of dominance in the Far East.

Although primarily an issue between the Reich and England, it is more than possible that the matter will resolve itself into a showdown between the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis and the London-Paris combine.

Gov.-Elect James Names Six Additional Members Of His Official Family

didate for Auditor General in 1936; salary, $10,000.

Secretary of Labor and Industry: Lewis G. Hines, of Philadelphia, an executive assistant to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., salary, $10,000.

Secretary of Forests and Waters: G. Albert Stewart, newspaper publisher of Clearfield; salary, $10,000.

Secretary of Public Assistance: Howard L. Russell, Upper Darby, a deputy in the public assistance department during part of the Earle administration; salary, $10,000.

Budget Secretary: Dr. Edward B. Logan, member of the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania and budget director during Gifford Pinchot's second term; salary, $8,000.

Logan, an expert in finances, is currently making a survey of the Commonwealth's financial condition for the incoming chief executive.

In accepting the Secretary of Revenue post, Sheriff Hamilton surrenders a position paying $15,000 a year, plus fees. Hamilton's term as Sheriff, however, would have expired at the end of 1939 and he has been widely mentioned as a Republican candidate for Mayor. Now 45, he was formerly a banker and is a member of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Russell, who is 46, was supported for the public assistance portfolio by social service leaders throughout the State. During the last administration of former-Governor Pinchot, he served as director of the methods and systems unit of the relief department and, retained by the Earle administration, he became assistant director of the department of public assistance before resigning.

Sweeney, the governor-elect's choice for Secretary of Welfare, is 57; editor and publisher of the Daily Tribune and Morning Review at Greensburg, and a close friend of Republican State Chairman James Torrance.

As Secretary of Highways, Hughes will be the dispenser of considerable patronage on Capitol Hill. He rose from the ranks to the presidency of Carnegie Steel Company and his appointment to the post, usually reserved for a professional politician, brings to the Department an outstanding man, impartial observers said.

Hines, the next Department of Labor chief, formerly served in the Bureau's mediation department. He vigorously supported James although the latter's opponent, Charles Alvin Jones, had the United support of the CIO and A. F. of L. state organizations.

ADVERTISING

--a service to YOU

Advertising renders an important service by bringing to you the show windows and price tags of the nation. In the Columns of this newspaper all through the year, you can discover and consider the things you want to buy. Thus you need not search through a hundred shops or pay more than you should.

The rule of advertising is simple. The more people know about the merit of a product, the more people buy it. The greater the volume of sales, the less it costs to manufacture. Savings in producing mean either lower prices to the consumer or an even greater value the next time you buy. This saves you money.

So advertising is more than a means for selling goods—it's a service to you!

BRISTOL
A powerful drama of modern youth and delinquent parents has come out of Hollywood. "Delinquent Parents," made by Progressive Pictures, coming today to the Bristol Theatre has scored with audiences everywhere.

"Delinquent Parents" is a typical problem picture, treating a controversial subject with much delicacy, yet with a decisive, indicting hand. The story is by no means a preachment. The moral lesson underscored in the film is subtly carried through the story without affecting any of its entertainment value.

The production is boldly intelligent and will assuredly receive the support of civic and social bodies. Good judgment was shown in casting the picture. Piquant Doris Weston, who gave such a fine performance recently in "Submarine D-1," has the leading feminine role of Carol—the girl who is brought up by adopted parents, with no knowledge of her real father and mother, who ironically enough come into her life when she grows to young womanhood.

GRAND
When the members of the cast supporting Jane Withers in her newest 20th Century-Fox comedy, "Always in Trouble," sought diversion and relaxation between scenes, they invariably turned to reading the European news dispatches in the daily press.

"After working awhile with Miss Michief," declared Director Joseph Santley, "we see the series of continental crises in a new light—they're not so bad after all! If you want real trouble, just be around when Jane gets going."

"She's always filled with good intentions. She's always trying to help folks out. She's always hoping to square things up. And always—always trouble, trouble, trouble!"

"Just look at this new picture, so appropriately named, 'Always in Trouble.' Jane and her family are shipwrecked, marooned on a desert island, threatened by a gang of smugglers—you never saw anything like it. And it's all because Jane had an idea!"

"She thinks there isn't a jam she can't get out of, and darn it, there isn't!"

FOR LONG SERVICE. GIVE ESPECIAL CARE TO COATS OF FUR

By Miss Edna Stephany (Home Economics Representative)
Furs, like our own skins, need regular and specific care. Fur trimmings and fur coats collect dust, and, because of their very nature hold the soil and let it accumulate.

Heavy soil, or soil collected from a season of wear, should be removed by an expert. Slight soil may be removed by rubbing coarse meal into the fur and brushing it out briskly. It is dangerous for inexperienced persons to try to use inflammable cleaning agents.

Observe these few important don'ts if you want your fur to give long service.

Don't rub fur against sharp objects, such as a purse, hat brim, or heavy jewelry.

Don't sit on your coat without loosening it so that there is no strain.
Don't let your furs get soaked. If this should happen, take it to a furrier at once. Never dry a fur near heat; dry it in a current of air. Shake a fur coat by the hem and a fur scarf by the head to loosen damp fur and fluff the hair.

CARDINAL AND GRAY WINS EASILY AT BUCKINGHAM

BUCKINGHAM, Jan. 11.—The Cardinal and Gray quintet of Bristol High went on a scoring rampage again as they walloped the Buckingham Buccaneers here last night in a Lower Bucks County League game, 38-14. In winning, the boys of coach Steve Juenger notched their second straight tilt of the season, and not that only, but also their second win in league competition, which puts them at the top of the circuit at the present time.

The Buccaneers racked up 7 tallies in the first period to keep pace with Bristol and were very much in the game at the conclusion of the initial period, trailing them by only five points, 12-7. But after that the Bucs couldn't cope with the fast-moving Cardinal attack, and although they trailed only 22-12 at half-time, they lagged far behind in the third and fourth periods when the Cards applied the pressure to step out in front far beyond the home team's reach.

Captain Stanley Prawdzik's lone double-decker at the start of the fourth period was the only pair of points the Bucs could register during the entire second half. They went scoreless completely in the third period, while Bristol chalked up ten more tallies and washed up with six more in the final canto for their game total of 38 markers.

An odd feature about the game from Bristol's standpoint was the fact that the Cards failed to register a single foul point during the contest. As a matter of fact, they had only two such tries but Bill Gallagher and Joe Quigley, each of whom had one, missed their only tries. Buckingham could count only two free shots, but they had nine more chances to score from the 15 foot mark than did Bristol. And their failure to score more points on such shots helped to keep their score down for they made only two out of 11 tries.

Remember Him?

Jess Willard

If you are a fight fan, you should recognize this man at the controls of a pusher type plane at the All-American air maneuvers at Miami, Fla. Yes, he is Jess Willard, former world's heavyweight boxing champion, defeated by Jack Dempsey at Toledo, O., in 1919. Dempsey again has come into Willard's life, having offered him a job in one of his restaurants. Willard now referees for a living.

FIVE STAR BOUTS ARE CARDED AT THE ARENA

TRENTON, Jan. 11.—Five star bouts, featuring ten of the best wrestlers in the game, is the wrestling fare that Promoter Johnny Ipp is offering the patrons at the Arena tonight. The show will start promptly at 8.30 p. m. as every bout is to a positive finish, with one fall to decide the issue.

Heading the card is the bout between Hans Stelke, the powerful German-American, who has amazed Arena fandom with his enormous strength and knowledge of wrestling holds. He faces Karl 'Killer' Davis, the rowdy southerner, who held Hans even last week in a 30 minute time limit match. It was one of the best bouts ever witnessed here, with the fans being treated to an amazing assortment of holds and the ability of both men to squirm out of them.

Slammih' Sammy Cohen, the Hebrew rioter, who caused more disturbances at the Arena than any other grappler, meets Vic Christy, the lithe and handsome Californian, who was a great favorite several years ago. Christy will be one of the real idols of local fandom, should he dispose of Cohen.

Pat Corrigan, the likeable and clever Irish youngster, will strive for his third straight win when he faces John Gudoski, the rough and tumble Pole.

Bibber McCoy, the Boston Fat Boy, and a pet hatred of the fans meets Sammy Menacher, popular New Yorker, in what should be a torrid tussle.

Frank Brown, the classy Texan, and winner over Chris Zaharias, meets Ali Ghandi, a newcomer from Arabia and reputed to be an exceptionally fine grappler.

BRISTOL HOCKEY TEAM WINS AND LOSES

Saturday night at the Garden Roller Rink in Trenton the Bristol Roller Hockey Team downed the Trenton Hockey 1-0. The game was a very fast and exciting one with much hard passing and shooting on both sides. The game was played in three 15-minute periods. During the first period both teams tried very hard to score without success.

The second period went the same. It looked very much like a scoreless game when late in the second period with but 15 seconds to play George Ritter sunk one past the goalie on a pass from Sam Leeper. This ended the game with Bristol the victor.

The Bristol boys went to Trenton a little down-hearted due to the fact that their goalie, Nelson Campbell, is confined to his bed with illness. Manager McCoy got in touch with Rudy Zeigler, a boy from Maple Shade who saved the day for the Bristol boys in spite of it being his debut on the hockey floor. Assisting him on the defensive work was Bill Ritter and "Rabbit" Reimer. Both showed real hockey ability.

Sunday the home town boys traveled to Ringing Rock Park where they met defeat at the hands of the Pottstown team. The final score being four to one although the Bristol boys fought very hard the breaks seemed to be against them. It was George who again came through with a point for the home town team. There was much good passing Sam Leeper and Chet Lawrence in this game, while Bill and Bud Ritter stood the hard knocks of the defense position stopping the puck many times, while Zeigler played the goal.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE TO MEET

There will be a meeting of the Bristol Basketball League tonight at 7.30 o'clock, sharp, in the St. Ann's Athletic Association. All managers and directors are requested to be present. A preliminary game to the St. Ann's Hibernians for the first-half championship will be picked.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS WIN AT BUCKINGHAM

BUCKINGHAM, Jan. 11.—Coach Matrona Walck's Buckingham High girls' basketball team gave the sextet of Bristol High its toughest competition the Cardinals have received since the girls' league organized last year when the Doe girls held the strong Bristol outfit and their sharp-shooting forwards at bay only to lose out to the visitors in a close game, 12-10, here last night.

Miss Walck's girls have come a long way after only one year of experience in girls' competitive basketball. Against Bristol last season, the Doe girls were handed sound trouncings by the Cardinal girls, 34-9, at Bristol; and 37-12 at Buckingham. And in each of those games, the second team alone scored enough points to beat the Buccaneers girls. However, this year coach Peg Royer was forced to keep her entire varsity six in throughout the entire game to win and even then the victory wasn't assured until the final whistle blew ending the contest.

While Buckingham girls played a fine defensive game, Bristol was at a disadvantage in height and also because they were playing on a much smaller court with a lower ceiling than they have been accustomed to. This threw the visitors' shots off and as a result they missed many they would have probably scored on an ordinary court. At the same time, the Doe girls also proved poor marksmen at times too, and they missed scoring chances that would have meant the game for them.

Close guarding, which featured the game, plus the small court held the score down no little for both teams, thus making foul shooting an important factor in the tilt. In this department Buckingham fared much better than Bristol's forwards for the Doe girls were able to sink four of their seven gift shots as compared to only two out of nine for Bristol.

See Baseball in Film and Hear Talks On Sport

Baseball, from its infancy to the present-day stages, was shown in a film produced by the National Baseball League, at the Knights of Columbus home, Radcliffe street, last night. The picture was presented through the courtesy of the Philadelphia National League club.

Short talks were given by William Phillips, who is in charge of the film; Joe O'Rourke, scout of the Phillies' ball club; and Dave Landreth, Bristol's popular baseball manager.

Mr. Phillips told of baseball to the young and old and of the semi-pro tournament in which he was interested last season.

O'Rourke praised the management of the late John McGraw, of the New York Giants, and claimed that he was the greatest manager that ever lived.

The Phillies' scout brought out the fact that young players are needed in the big leagues, and advised all the youths of today to learn the game, play it clean, and not be a "sore-head."

Dave Landreth spoke of his plans to give Bristol better baseball this coming season, and advised the fans to watch his club from the start, as he feels that it will be the best ever. He expects to leave for the South soon, and while there will visit the training camps of the major league clubs.

William Gallagher, grand knight of the local council, K. of C., acted as toastmaster.

To Prosecute Four in County For Chiseling

persons, $355; Montgomery, 12 persons, $475; Bucks, 4 persons, $176.

The complaints charge obtaining of money by false pretense and the arrests ordered by Arthur W. Howe, Jr., State Secretary of Public Assistance. If convicted, the accused are subject to imprisonment up to three years, and/or fine up to $1000, must make restitution in full and pay the costs of prosecution.

In passing sentence the courts can consider each food, fuel, clothing, rent or other order, or each check accepted or cashed by a chiseler as a separate offense.

Prosecutions will start today in Philadelphia, Lackawanna, Luzerne and Montgomery counties. Hearings will be held on Friday in Bucks and Lancaster counties.

The justice of the peace before whom the Bucks County defendants will appear, and the local agents of the DPA claim settlements units who will prosecute, are as follows:

Justice of the Peace Hobensack, Doylestown. Prosecutor, Edward S. Kain.

Prosecutions for the most part arose out of failure of relief recipients to report employment obtained by them or members of their family relief grant, or failure to disclose assets which would have made them ineligible for assistance. In no case has arrest been ordered without giving the defendant an opportunity to make restitution. It was announced by Julius H. Tolson, Special Deputy Attorney General, state head of the DPA's Division of Claim Settlements. All prosecutions are individually reviewed and approved by Mr. Tolson before the arrests are ordered.

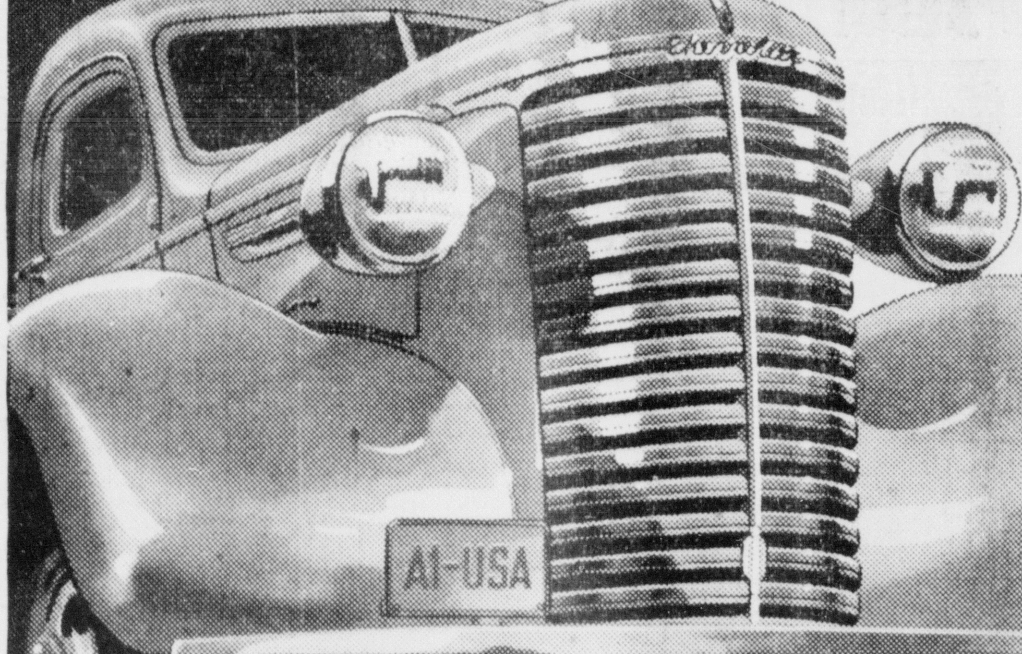

Under the state law, arresting officers are required to take their prisoners to the nearest police station or jail, where they are permitted to post bail and obtain their release pending hearing. Copy of the charge and signing of personal recognizance bond are not permitted under the law in these cases. Cash or property must be posted.

Once the complaint has been issued, the Department is no longer permitted to accept offers of restitution. Such offers can be made only to the local district attorney and acceptance must be ordered by him, Mr. Tolson explained.

"We are whipping the chiseler racket," said Secretary Howe in announcing this week's drive. "Those who have been chiseling only thought they were getting away with it. Now we are going after them without mercy. Delay in appointing permanent personnel to the Claim Settlements units throughout the state was due to the operation of the civil service law for Department of Public Assistance employees. These appointments now have been made and we are cleaning up."

Last year the department prosecuted 828 chiselers through the state, only six of whom were acquitted by the courts. Evidence upon which prosecutions are based is gathered in the routine of the County Assistance Boards.
